Practice questions

In this booklet, there are different types of question for you to answer in different ways. Here are some practice questions which show you the types of question you will see in the test. The instructions tell you what you need to do. Start by reading the text in the box below.

One cold and rainy afternoon, Rob and Laura asked Helen to show them how to bake biscuits. Once they had found a recipe they washed their hands, put on aprons and collected the ingredients. Laura weighed the flour and butter, Rob cracked the eggs and Helen mixed everything together in a plastic bowl.

While the biscuits were baking in the oven, a delicious smell filled the kitchen. They left the biscuits to cool, then Rob and Laura decorated them with sparkly icing. They gave Helen the first biscuit to taste.

a) Find and copy two words that describe the weather.

1. ____________________________

2. ____________________________

Hint: You must look back in the text to find these.

b) What ingredients did they use to bake the biscuits?

Tick three.

- milk
- flour
- eggs
- fruit
- nuts
- butter

Hint: Check how many you have to tick.

c) Draw three lines to show who did each job.

- Helen: cracked the eggs
- Rob: mixed the ingredients
- Laura: weighed the flour
d) Look at the text in the box below.

Underline one word that shows the biscuits smelled nice.

While the biscuits were baking in the oven, a delicious smell filled the kitchen.

Hint: If you make a mistake and want to change your answer, then write out your new answer underneath.

e) Put these events in order by numbering them from 1 to 4.
One has been done for you.

- They decorated the biscuits.
- They collected the ingredients.
- They washed their hands. 1
- They baked the biscuits in the oven.

f) Put ticks to show which statements are true and which are false.

STOP Please wait until you are told to start work on page 4.

In this booklet, you have three texts to read and answer questions about. Read the first text carefully BEFORE you start answering the questions for that text. Then carefully read the next text BEFORE answering the questions and so on.

You should work through the booklet, referring to the text when you need to, until you finish page 15 or until you are asked to stop.

You have up to 60 minutes to do the test.
The Pebble Valley Railway offers an exciting and educational day out for all the family. Take a trip on one of our wonderfully historical but well-cared-for trains from 1895. Visit the Museum and learn all about the history of these great locomotives. Spend an hour in our Station Café, where you can eat and drink in a welcoming and relaxing environment and where children can enjoy playing with our model railways.

If this is your first visit, we don’t think it will be your last!

There was only one car in the station car park. The occupants were one young man who, Alfie guessed, was meeting someone off the next train – and two very large dogs. One of the dogs, with tongue hanging loose as he panted loudly, had thrust his head out of the open car window and was staring hard at Alfie.

‘Must keep well clear of those dogs,’ Alfie thought. He turned to run back into the station when – being well used to train sounds – he heard an unusual noise. He glanced back, startled.

On time, the train was coming round the curve towards the station. Nothing wrong about that. But it was travelling far too fast. ‘Whatever is happening?’ thought Alfie, very worried.

Going at that speed, Alfie knew the train couldn’t be halted before it crashed through the buffers right into the station car park! And, apart from the train, what would happen to the car, which was right in the path of the train? And to the young man, who was reading a newspaper? And to the dogs?

Hardly realising what he was doing, with the hair round his neck standing on end and his teeth bared, Alfie rushed at the car. Bravely, he sprang up at the car window and spat fiercely at the dogs.

Surprised, the young man looked up quickly as, barking fiercely, both dogs one after the other leapt out of the window and went after Alfie.

The young man’s eyes widened in amazement and fright as he saw the yellow front of the train coming straight for him. He flung open the car door and jumped clear, just before the runaway train, with a grinding, crunching noise, smashed through the buffers and the barrier fence and careered into the parked car, crushing it into a tangled heap of metal.

Alfie had frantically clawed his way up a drainpipe and crouched down on the station roof. The dogs fled and the young man, in a dazed state, stumbled after them.

Peering over the edge of the roof Alfie saw that the passengers, unharmed but shaken, were being helped from the train.

Soon the police arrived, then a doctor and an ambulance. Alfie watched intently as the driver was lifted out of the cab. With a broken leg and a sore head, but managing to smile at his friends, he was driven off in the ambulance.
This is an extract from a story about Alfie, a railway cat.

Why is this sentence included?

Tick one.

Five steps to giving nature a home

Nature is gradually being damaged and lost. There are more than 6,000 types of plants and animals in Britain and over 750 of them are under threat of disappearing altogether. But don’t worry – we can do something about this by creating places where nature can be safe.

Here are five steps to giving wildlife a safe home in your garden, on a windowsill or even at your school. Whatever time and space you have, you will find these activities enjoyable to do.

Step 1 – grow flowers

You only need a small space to start to grow plants. Grow as many different flowers in one place as you can possibly squeeze in – the more the merrier! Plenty of flowers mean you will attract lots of bugs, birds and other beasts.

Step 2 – go wild

Why don’t you ask your school if you can have a section of grass for a wild garden? A lawn can be a great place for wildlife to live, especially if it isn’t cut too often. Long grass will provide shelter for all sorts of insects, like grasshoppers and moths. Lawns also provide bird food in the seeds they produce: meadow grass, buttercup and dandelion are some favourites.

Hedges, or gaps beneath fences and gates, can link gardens together creating a nature corridor. All sorts of creatures like hedgehogs and toads can move between one garden and another, turning a whole street into a wildlife haven!

Step 3 – pile up dead wood

Dead and rotting wood doesn’t sound very appealing, but it provides a fantastic home to all sorts of little creatures. Hedgehogs can build their nests in the wood piles and feast on the slugs and snails that live there. Dead, damp wood is also a great place to grow mosses and mushrooms. What’s more, when the wood has rotted, it can be used as compost to fertilise the soil and help other plants to grow.

Step 4 – make a meal of it

Put out a variety of food all year round and you may find yourself with many feathered and furry friends! Ideal foods include sunflower seeds, porridge oats and apples. Don’t forget to leave fresh water out too. Birds need to drink and bathe, so leave some water out in a shallow dish.

Step 5 – shout about it!

Share what you have been doing with everybody that you talk to and encourage them to do the same. The more people who get involved, the more our wildlife will bloom!
Look at the text in the box below.

Underline two words or phrases that tell you that nature is at risk.

Nature is gradually being damaged and lost. There are more than 6,000 types of plants and animals in Britain and over 750 of them are under threat of disappearing altogether. But don’t worry – we can do something about this by creating places where nature can be safe.
