Support for children, parents and families

My name is Nikki Ascott, and I’m a Father Hudson’s Family Support Worker. I work to support children and families with any worries and difficulties they may be experiencing. We work together to create positive changes and make life feel more manageable.

I am usually here at St John Fisher on a Thursday 9am-2pm. I am happy for parents to pop in to see me, or to book an appointment through the Office or contact me on 07912480894.

A member of staff would complete a referral so that you can gain support promptly.

There are lots of areas that I may be able to help with. For example:

- Family relationships, health and well-being, financial hardship, bereavement, housing matters or a referral to specialist services
- Children’s behaviour at home or school
- Transitions in school or moving up to secondary school
- Attendance or lateness
- Individual work with children on self-esteem, confidence, parental separation, anger management, friendships, social networks, bereavement and problem solving.

If you are not sure whether I can help, please ask as there may be something I can do. Family Support leaflets are available from the Office.
