One sunny day, there was a young boy called Geoff. Geoff loved beans so much because they were very tasty. When Geoff was at school all of his friends wanted to be footballers or doctors but Geoff wanted to work for the company Heinz. Heinz were famous for making delicious beans. A few years later, Geoff arrived outside the magnificent Heinz building with his CV. He looked up at the grand building. The building was golden and made of hard bricks. It was so wide! He could not believe his eyes. Geoff felt so excited but nervous at the same time because this job meant so much to him. He lifted his small hand up and pushed the cold metal door open.
